Sales by Store and Product Category

It is used to spot strong and weak combinations. Each cell represents a category at a store. Its color intensity shows revenue, helping you quickly identify which categories perform best at each location.